

“

The Healthvision community nursing team are fantastic. Their knowledge and clinical skills were exceptional, and the service they provide to patients was excellent. The patients were very grateful, and it was clear that they were significantly improving with the treatments that were being provided.”

– Joshua Smith, GP Registrar

From humble beginnings...

As a family-owned Kiwi business, Healthvision has been leading the way in community health services for 25 years, bringing together expert care with a compassionate approach. Established in 1999 by Sue Doherty, a registered nurse who identified a need for quality and responsive home-based care services, Healthvision continues to stand out as a leading provider.

- We support grassroots action and value community-based and family-orientated healthcare
- We promote partnership through sharing latest best-practice information and innovation
- We combine services across home support, nursing, and rehabilitation teams to deliver efficient, integrated healthcare to drive better outcomes
- We offer practice nurse training programmes

Kindness, respect, and empathy

Healthvision offers a range of services, from home support, nursing, wound care, to rehabilitation, physiotherapy, health and wellbeing, and more. We offer collective, integrated services to help people live their best life.
